1. The Magyaraki Klub (Hungarian Club) in Zagreb, Radiceva 32, was in existence before the war, having been organized as a cultural club for Hungarian travelers and residents in Zagreb. Since 1949 the club has cooperated with the Yugoslav Government, complying with its demands although it is not believed that its members engage in espionage activities.
2. The club has about 800 members, most of whom are students at the University of Zagreb. To be a member, one must be a Hungarian, a resident of Zagreb, and pay 10 dinars per month in dues. The club meets approximately once a month as a group for discussion, in addition to its social affairs. A favorite topic of discussion is the problem of the Banat and Vojvodina areas, formerly part of Hungary which are now a part of Yugoslavia. The club leaders publicly favor the Yugoslav retention of this territory, but most members are secretly for the return of these areas to Hungary.
3. Zlata Hainal (sic) is official president of the Magyaraki Klub, although some members consider her as more or less a figurehead. A certain Rucka is secretary and Istvan Balog is the treasurer.
